A global network of architectural practices set up and led by London office of Perkins+Will

Welcome to IDEa - our International Design Alliance of architects, a global network of architectural practices set up and led by the London office of Perkins+Will. This brochure acts as a brief introduction to the group, the alliance partners, our combined client list and a selection of key projects.

IDEa was created in response to the ever increasing globalisation of clients operations. Sophisticated clients operate internationally and expect suppliers to be able to serve their needs accordingly. This network offers a truly integrated consultancy and design service to clients. Our combined experience and expertise allows us to address different cultures, regulatory regimes, local procurement practices and give expert delivery in each local market.
